WEBSITE COMPANY PROFILE

Trinity AI Boston, Inc. · Internal working document

The profile is accurate about compliance and wrong about almost everything commercial.

The security, patent and attorney-in-the-loop sections are good and should stay close to as written. The product story, the naming, the markets and the leadership page all need work before this goes public.

Factual errors to fix

WHAT IT SAYS	WHAT IS WRONG
"Trinity AI" throughout	The company name is Trinity AI Boston, in full, every time. Never shortened. This appears at least a dozen times in the document.
"Cosmos One", "Cosmos Nexus"	Written CosmosOne™ and CosmosNexus™, closed up and with the trademark symbol. Cosmos Helix™ and Cosmos Gravity™ do take the space. Polaris takes no symbol.
"Boston, USA" as the office	The registered address is 2 Trinity Ct, Andover, MA 01810. If we want a city on the page, write Greater Boston, but do not state Boston as the office.
CosmosOne™ as a "full litigation lifecycle" platform	CosmosOne™ is first-party property. Describing it as covering all litigation makes it sound generic and invites comparison with every horizontal legal AI tool on the market.
"E-Discovery Acceleration" as a capability	Remove it. It is the wrong category for us, it puts us next to Relativity and Everlaw in a reader's mind, and it contradicts the position that we reason on the record rather than retrieve from it.
"Logistics" in markets served	Remove. We do not sell to logistics companies, and the word makes the whole list read as aspirational.
Tagline: "Imagine AI that thinks beyond today"	Our tagline is Engineering Scale at Trust™. Two taglines is no tagline. Pick one and retire the other.
Two platforms	We have five in build or production. See the recommendation on page two, which is not simply to list all five.
Cosmos Gravity scope	Where it appears anywhere else, Cosmos Gravity™ is audit and compliance. Keep that wording consistent.

Leadership, as it should read

These two come first, above everyone else on the page, in this order and with these titles in full.

NAME	TITLE
Jayashankar Nanjundaswamy	Co-Founder, President and Chief Executive Officer, Member of the Board
Ganesh Ramamoorthy	Co-Founder, Chief Technology Officer, Member of the Board

- Spelling. Jayashankar Nanjundaswamy, in full, with that spelling exactly. Check every page of the site for variants.
- Ganesh moves up. The current profile lists him under advisors as "Advisor, Applied AI and Decision Systems". He is a co-founder and the Chief Technology Officer and belongs at the top with the title above.
- Then use it everywhere. Once this is on the public site it becomes the version of record, so the deck, the signature blocks and anything else in circulation need to match it.

How much of the platform to show.

The instinct that naming CosmosHelios™ tells the market we are going at Intapp is right, and it is worth being deliberate about. The answer is not to hide the practice lines. It is to publish what we do and withhold how we do it.

THE RECOMMENDATION

Do not list five products. Show one platform, the Cosmos platform, with the practice lines it runs.

It is truer, it is stronger, and it solves the disclosure problem at the same time. Five named products, three of them early, reads as a company spreading itself thin. One platform with five practice lines reads as an engine that has been proven and then pointed at the next problem. It also turns intake and conflicts from a product launched at an incumbent into a capability of a litigation platform, which is a much harder thing for anyone to attack.

Publish

- The practice lines by name and what each one does for the client.
- The verification discipline: attorney approval on every output, a citation on every finding, ABA Formal Opinion 512 and Florida Bar Opinion 24-1 built into the workflow. This is our strongest public asset and the current profile already says it well.
- SOC 2 Type 1 attested, Type 2 observation running. Single tenant by design.
- Ten provisional patent filings, described by subject area as the profile already does.
- That the platform is in production with an Am Law 200 defense firm, without naming anyone.

Do not publish

- Pricing of any kind. No per-matter rates, no per-policy rate, no subscription figures.
- Client names, or anything from which a client can be identified.
- Market size estimates. The construction defect figures on page three of the profile are our own estimates with no authoritative source. On a public page they invite someone to challenge them and we cannot defend the number. Cut them.
- Deployment dates and the roadmap. Committed dates are a sales asset in a room, not a public claim.
- Cosmos Equinox™. It is not monetized and it belongs to one client. It should not appear at all.
- How the engines work together beyond naming them. Read, see, verify is enough. The sequencing and the rule sets are the moat.

What is missing and should be added

- A reason to believe. The profile asserts capability and never once shows evidence. One line that the platform is running in production inside an Am Law 200 defense firm is worth more than the entire capability table.
- The belief the company was built on. The telescope metaphor is thin. We already have a stronger line and it should lead the page.
- A clear statement of who the buyer is. The carrier funds the defense. That single fact explains our whole shape and it is nowhere on the page.

The Services section

Academic alliances, intellectual property development, a venture council and co-venture partnerships describe a different company from the one selling litigation platforms to carriers and defense firms. A visitor trying to work out what we sell will be confused by it. Move it off the main profile onto its own page if it must exist, or cut it.

Recommended profile copy.

Ready to publish. Headings match the existing page structure so it can be dropped in section by section.

Opening

> Every other industry grew by copying its best people. A lawyer cannot be copied. It is the reason a client asks for you by name.
>
> So we never tried. Trinity AI Boston built underneath the work instead.

Company at a glance

> Trinity AI Boston, Inc. builds artificial intelligence for insurance defense litigation, where the output is signed by an attorney, filed with a court and billed to a carrier that audits it. The Cosmos platform carries a matter from intake through to a defense position, with every assertion cited to the record and every output held for attorney approval.
>
> Engineering Scale at Trust™

Who we build for

> Insurance carriers, the defense firms on their panels, and the in-house teams on the defendant side. The carrier funds the defense, which is why the platform is built to satisfy both the attorney who signs the work and the carrier who pays for it.

The platform

> One engine, run across the practice lines where the record is largest and the stakes are highest. The engine ingests the record, extracts the facts, reasons on them, cites the authority, and routes every output to an attorney for approval. What changes between practice lines is the law, not the machinery.

PRACTICE LINE	WHAT IT DOES
First-party property CosmosOne™	Carries a first-party property matter end to end, from first notice of loss through the statutory clock and into defense, with every assertion traced to the record.
Construction defect CosmosNexus™	Reads an entire defect file at terabyte scale and produces a defense position a partner can sign. Quantified exposure, liability caps, the apportionment position, and where the opposing expert's theory breaks down.
Intake and conflicts CosmosHelios™	Clears a new matter by reasoning about relationships rather than matching names, so conflicts are found rather than searched for.
Nursing home and assisted living Cosmos Helix™	Turns scanned and handwritten medical files into source-linked chronologies, with gaps in treatment and gaps in records surfaced rather than missed.
Audit and compliance Cosmos Gravity™	Encodes counsel guidelines as enforced rules, so compliance is proven on demand rather than audited after the fact.

How it reads the record

> Three engines, with an attorney approving every output. Cortex reads the written record. Polaris reads the photographic record. Argus™ adversarially re-checks both before anything reaches an attorney.

Why it can be filed behind

Professional rules oblige an attorney to verify generative output, and carrier guidelines are beginning to say so in writing. Trinity AI Boston is built to meet that obligation rather than to work around it.

Attorney in the loop. ABA Formal Opinion 512 and Florida Bar Opinion 24-1 are built into the workflow. No output leaves the system without attorney approval.
A citation on every finding. Every assertion names the document, rule, statute or opinion it rests on. If it cannot cite its source, it does not appear.
Single tenant by design. A client's record never shares an environment.

Technology, intellectual property and security

Legal-tuned language models, multi-modal extraction, knowledge graphs and decision intelligence, built on proprietary frameworks.

Ten provisional patent filings with the United States Patent and Trademark Office, covering human-in-the-loop gated pipelines, citation grounding, multi-modal extraction and workflow orchestration.
SOC 2 Type 1 independently attested, August 2026. Type 2 observation period running.

In production

The platform is deployed and running inside an Am Law 200 insurance defense firm, on live matters, in that firm's own environment.

Locations

Headquarters at 2 Trinity Ct, Andover, Massachusetts. Engineering and development centre in Bangalore, India.

What to do with the rest of the existing page

SECTION	RECOMMENDATION
Vision: AI as a lens for truth	Replace with the opening above. Keep the three principles underneath it, they are good.
CosmosOne™ capability table	Replace. Drop E-Discovery Acceleration and Regulatory Analysis entirely, and rewrite the rest against first-party property rather than litigation in general.
CosmosNexus™ section	Keep the description, it is the best writing on the page. Cut the market estimate paragraph and the customer table.
Services	Move to its own page or cut.
Leadership	Reorder so the two co-founders lead the page with the full titles on page one. Confirm the thirty-five years in semiconductors line before it goes public.
Technology, IP and compliance	Keep almost as written. It is the strongest section in the document.
Sources list at the end	Remove. A company profile citing its own website reads as machine generated.
